

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The transfer apparatus transfers an image displayed in an image display area of an image display unit of transmission type to an image forming area of a light-sensitive recording medium by means of light passing through the image display unit. The apparatus has an image processing section by means of which either a size or a display position of the image to be displayed in the image display area or both are adjusted prior to image display in accordance with either a size of the image forming area or a relative position of the image forming area with respect to the image display area or both.